

Project: Palladio House

Valued at £35m, The Palladio Residence was one of the most expensive homes sold in Britain in 2008! This beautiful house in North London was designed by Bill Bennette Design and Royal architect William Bertram.

The property takes its name from Andrea Palladio, forefather of the Palladian Architecture movement, of which it is an outstanding modern day example.

Some of the features include a nightclub, a cinema and a subterranean swimming pool, decorated in gold plated mosaic!

Working closely on the specification with Bill and his team, we produced our 9mm bespoke parquet flooring in a complex series of designs and wood species, to complement each room and interior.

Product: 9mm Parquet Flooring in Various Designs and Wood Species

Finish: Site Applied Lacquer

Quantity: 1500m²

